

STEINWAY SOCIETY OF WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA

YOUNG ARTISTS AUDITION

The Steinway Society of Western Pennsylvania in association with Trombino Piano Gallerie is organizing an audition every year for young piano students of piano teachers who are members of the Steinway Society of Western Pennsylvania. This year audition will take place on June 11-12, 2010, at Trombino Piano Gallerie downtown Pittsburgh.

This audition is geared toward well accomplished piano students of pre college age who can perform from memory several pieces from the standard piano repertoire. The duration of each student program should be not shorter than 10 minutes, and not exceed thirty minutes. The qualified students will have the opportunity to perform in different venues organized by the Steinway Society of Western PA such as recitals at Trombino Piano Gallerie, recitals at Heinz Hall lobby before Pittsburgh Symphony subscription concerts, master classes with renowned pianists.

A group of 26 students will be selected for the Heinz Hall lobby recitals for the 2010-2011 season. Students of this group only will be eligible to participate with one movement of a concerto in a concerto competition taking place at Trombino Piano Gallerie on June 19, 2010. One student will be selected to play with the McKeesport Symphony during the 2010-2011 season.

Each student would need to present a detailed program, including full name of each composer and its dates, name of each piece or movement with opus number and key. A biography of each student is also required, written at third person, and including school name, grade, accomplishments, awards, hobbies. Each student should also write an essay about its motivation to play the piano. The application forms need to be sent to Marina Lupinacci a.s.a.p.

All participants to the auditions are strongly encouraged to become members of the Steinway Society of Western PA. There are four professional pianist recitals during the 2010-2011 season, included in the membership, and many other musical benefits.
